34 Greg Quintal Rd, Norfolk Island

Coveted private location with a comfortable and versatile home

Enveloped on two sides by glorious national park and with outlooks across to the stunning sunset location of Puppy's Point, this single-level home is a private and protected sanctuary. Nestled on a quiet road, with no houses beyond, you are truly secluded in this location. This tranquil pocket on the way to Anson Bay is a magical spot enjoyed by only three landowners, and unable to be subdivided further at this time.

The three-bedroom, two-bathroom main house has spacious living areas with double opening doors to undercover outdoor areas, renovated bathrooms, well proportioned bedrooms and a country style kitchen with all modern appliances. Built in the mid 1970s, the home was constructed with quality and attention to detail well-beyond most homes of that era. Norfolk Pine exterior cladding, timber doors and windows, concrete foundation pad and above spec ceiling height ensure the home has remained in vogue throughout its life, and regular updates completed (such as the bathrooms) make it modern, and move in ready.

A fourth bedroom connected to the quality two-bay garage lends itself to a place where teenagers can make their escape, or as a perfect remote working office with ocean views - the home is versatile as a family home or ideal for those retreating from the rush of the mainland in later life.

Situated on over 5 hectares, the land includes a 30 year old Norfolk pine plantation of approximately 5,000 trees, an orchard with fruit bearing avocados, citrus, bananas, feijoas, figs, and stone fruit trees for a wonderful
